Weather Probabilities.

Special Dispatch to The Bee.

WASHINGTON, April 21, 1:00 A. M.—Signal service bulletin: The storm which was central in Idaho yesterday morning moved eastward, developing great energy. It is now central in Colorado. Violent southerly winds to easterly winds prevail in Texas, and thence northward over Kansas, Nebraska and Dakota, with local rains.

INDICATIONS:

For the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri valley, threatening weather and rain, violent to stormy; warmer southerly winds, falling barometer followed by variable winds and cooler weather in the Upper Missouri valley.

LOCAL NEWS.

—The citizens of North Omaha were treated to an old-fashioned charivari Thursday night.

—A regular blizzard blew all day yesterday and dust flew in clouds all over the city.

—Cut-off lake will be navigated this year by the small steamer built on the river front last year.

—It is reported that the recent gas demolished the ground stand on the B. & M. baseball grounds.

—The "Grand Pacific," as the rejuvenated Cozzen house is to be called, will be opened about May 15th and will be run on both the European and American plans.

—An E. B. Carter is going to occupy our store May 1st, we are offering still greater inducements in our stock of stationery and blank books. DAVIS BROS., opp. P. O.

—The old junction of the Tenth and Farnam street lines was cut off yesterday and the new switch for use of the street cars located in front of the B. & M. headquarters.

—Sneak thieves entered the residence of Mrs. Fritchard, on Seventeenth street, between Douglas and Dodge Thursday, and carried off her portmanteau containing about $20.

—Prof. J. B. Bruner, of the North Omaha school, has succeeded in adding one more to the census. He is to be congratulated on the arrival of a fine girl at his house.

—Sheriff Manning, of Deadwood, who is in the city en route for home, is just returning from a trip to Sioux Falls, where he took three prisoners recently convicted to the penitentiary.

—We would advise those wishing to obtain some bargains in stationery, fancy goods, blank books, etc., etc., to call at once as we will positively close in a few days. DAVIS BROS., opp. P. O.

—The benefit concert for the Saratoga Sunday school, which takes place on Friday evening, April 27th, will be an enjoyable affair. The best vocal talent of Omaha will be present and Mrs. C. E. Squires and Mrs. H. D. Estabrook will sing. The orchestra of the 4th Infantry will furnish some good music.

—Sacreligious sneak thieves entered the church parlors of the First M. E. church during the progress of prayer meeting the other evening and carried off a new overcoat and a hat. They also took a $40 overcoat and a dress coat from the pastor's residence next door.

—W. A. Morrison, of the Omaha Post was out with an extra edition yesterday and the boys are smoking with him. It is a m. yesterday, and all are doing well. This is Morrison's first office branch and he is correspondingly elated.

—A meeting of the Nebraska Humane Society will be held this evening in the ladies reception room of Boyd's opera house, where final action will be taken as to the location of the public drinking fountain proposed by the society last fall. It is quite probable that a site on Douglas at or near the corner of Fifteenth will be chosen.

—The rehearsals of our amateur troupe that plays "Waiting for the Verdict" next Wednesday evening, still goes steadily along, and they mean to excel and make it a decided success. The cast is quite complete, and we hear that G. E. Clarke, late of "The Stoops to Conquer" troupe, Plattsmouth, will assist in the reproduction. They deserve a full house, and we hope they will get it.

—Miss Myrtle Estes, of South Omaha, was greatly surprised by a party of young folks giving her a call Thursday evening. The evening was spent in the playing of various games, etc. A good supper was served, although the callers were so unexpected. Among those present were Misses Anna Stolder, Mable Woodward, Julia Scott, Minnie Woodward and Messrs. M. A. Dillon, Geo. A. Goodwin, Ed. Dillon, Luther Atkins, John Umpherson and Chas. Cose.

—A. F. Nash yesterday bought and shipped to I. B. DeRussy, of Omaha, John Tucker's brown gelding "Tom." The price paid was rather a fancy one, $400, but after looking about the country for several weeks, Mr. DeRussy concluded that he could buy, and so paid the figure asked. "Tom" is a fine roan, seven years old, and possesses that combination of good qualities which the purchaser was looking for and was willing to pay for.—Sioux City Journal.

—The presidency of Omaha, which has been in session at Madison, closed a very successful session on Wednesday night, the work of the spring meeting having been accomplished in two days under the prompt and energetic management of Rev. Geo. Williams, of Nebraska. Quite a full representation was present, especially from the eastern part of the presidency. The general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the United States, which meets at Saratoga Springs, New York, in May, will be represented by W. J. Harsh and —It will be pleasing news to the many admirers of Messrs. E. A. O'Brien and F. M. McDonough, who so successfully personated the heavy villains in "Waiting for the Verdict," two years ago, to learn that they are again in training for a repetition of the performance next Wednesday evening.

ing, under the auspices of St. George's society. With two professional lawyers in charge of the trial, it is possible that the jury may yet side the text and convict Jonas and Huddle. At any rate, "Little Mac" is determined to demolish the Professor in the last act, and has telegraphed for a supply of dynamite cartridges. Pistols often refuse to go off, you know.

O. H. Ballou, of Omaha; Rev. Joel Warner, of Hooper, Nebraska; and Mackey Rodgers, of Fremont, who go to the assembly as commissioners of the presidency of Omaha. The next meeting of the presidency will be held at St. Edwards, Nebraska.

—Reaching that a large proportion of our Omaha ladies have heretofore made part of their purchases of dry goods in eastern cities, we desire to call attention to the magnificent assortment now shown in the palatial establishment of S. P. Morse & Co. Year by year this firm has made rapid strides to the front until now their goods, their prices and their management stand second to none in America. All that Morse & Co. ask is examination and comparison. S. P. Morse & Co. will not only duplicate the price, but guarantee to undersell any New York or Chicago retail house. It is important that such an establishment should receive the support of our lady readers; a clear field and no favors is their motto and all our readers can profit greatly if they will at least examine Morse's dress goods, silks, hosiery, underwear, etc., etc., of which they claim without fear of contradiction to be the only direct importers in Omaha, consequently saving a New York jobbers profit of at least twenty-five per cent, the full benefit of which they give to their customers.

—There will be a public exhibition of the J. J. Mackdon play and safety valve this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The experiment will be made at the No. 1 engine house on Izard street. It will be very interesting, and those who desire to see a novelty in the line of approved mechanism will do well to be on hand at the time above named.

—About fifty men have been set to work on the Florence cut-off and it is expected that about 200 more will be put on to finish the job through. The work of cutting ditches to drain off the water is what is now going on.

—John M. Thurston is a happy man. This morning his wife presented him with a little daughter, and John is ready to "set 'em up" to all the boys.

—There was a heavy passenger train west at noon yesterday, there being eleven cars in all and all crowded.

DESTITUTION.

Death and Poverty Visit a Family Together.

Money to Pay Rent, but Not for Bread or a Coffin.

A sad case of destitution was brought to the attention of a Bee reporter yesterday, existing in the family of Joseph Zabodek, a Bohemian who resided at 1413 Leavenworth street. The man has been sick for a long time, and finally expired about 1 o'clock Thursday morning, leaving his wife and four children, the youngest but a few months old, to the tender mercies of the world and of the one who has promised to protect the widow and the fatherless.

When the father died there was but four dollars in the family treasury, and the rent, just that amount, was due that morning. There was not a bite to eat in the cupboard and not a cent to pay for the burial of the dead. Of course it was necessary first of all to be assured of having a roof to cover their heads and early in the morning the little girl was sent to the landlord, who is one of the richest men in town, to pay him.

Going to the office she first explained the circumstances to the man, in hopes that he would allow a few days' rent on the rent and leave them money to buy bread. The story was told and the landlord remarked that "it was too bad," but took the money all the same, and the little one left empty handed. Of course no one will dispute his right to his rent money, but the principal and interest for all the long ages of eternity will not amount to so much on the ledger of the Almighty as the action of a poor neighbor, who, finding the family in destitution, took them to his own home and provided for them over night, leaving the dead to the watchful care of Him who notes even the sparrows fall.

When the remains of the dead man are buried, the family will be looked after by the city mission folks, who have been notified of their destitution.

WEDDING CHIMES.

The marriage of John S. Miller and Nellie M. Munson.

A pleasant wedding was celebrated at the North Presbyterian church last evening, the principals in the wedding were Mr. John S. Miller of the Republican and Miss Nellie M. Munson.

The groom is well known in this city and has been connected with various newspapers for the past five or six years. The boys who knew him believed him to be a confirmed old bachelor, but at this late day he has become a benedict and he has chosen well. His bride is a very beautiful and accomplished young lady, and in obtaining her for a wife John has won a capital prize in the matrimonial lottery. The happy couple start out in life under the brightest auspices, and they have the well wishes of a host of friends.

After the ceremony at the church the bridal party adjourned to the residence which is to be their future home, No. 1331 North 18th street, where a reception was held at which their numerous friends were present to tender their congratulations and participate in the festivities incident to the occasion.

A number of handsome wedding gifts were received and everything passed off in the most delightful manner.

A GLITTERING FRAUD.

A Diamond Stud and its Adventures.

An Interesting Case in the Police Court.

A case which promises to be quite interesting before it is done with came up before Judge Benke last evening.

A young colored man, named James Parker, came to Omaha recently, and, running out of money, concluded to put his diamond shirt-stud, worth about $25, "in soak."

Not being acquainted here, he asked a friend to go and "see his uncle" for him, and the latter, being also a stranger in Omaha, secured the services of a third friend, a colored man named Chas. Williams.

Several places were visited, in order to ascertain, if possible, the true value of the stone, and among others who placed a figure on it was Mr. S. Lehman, who said the stone was worth $10.

After making several calls, Williams finally gave up the job, and went to return to jewel to its owner.

After handing it over to Parker, it was discovered that some one had substituted a bogus piece of jewelry for the real one, and of course there was an apparent fraud, as Parker, who went to pawn the article to Lehman, as he had made arrangements to do, found that Lehman already had possession of it, and had paid $10 for the same.

About this time Officer Walker came along the street and arrested Williams and was also on the lookout for a white man who, it was claimed, had made the substitution of the false for the true stone.

The whole party of colored men was taken before Judge Benke and Williams was held together with the two strangers for an appearance in the police court, when a very interesting trial is anticipated.

HABEAS CORPUS.

Two Mothers Fighting for Their Own Flesh and Blood.

"Little Jay" Disposed of at Last—The Kelly Case in Court.

Yesterday afternoon both the county and district court rooms were the scene of sensational cases.

THE KELLY CASE

which has been pretty well advertised in the papers has at length got into the courts, and an early solution of the question of which of John Kelly's wives are entitled to the children, is expected. Mrs. Kelly who came out from Philadelphia to get her two girls, secured the services of Judge Van Eiten, and yesterday afternoon a writ of habeas corpus was sworn out before Judge Chadwick, and placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Crowell and Constable E. J. Gorton for service. They proceeded to the residence of Mrs. Kelly No. 2, in North Omaha, and found that lady out, but the eldest girl, Alice, was at home, and Jane was at the house of a family named Clair, not far away. The two young ladies were taken in custody, and brought before the county judge, where their alleged mother soon appeared to fight for their retention. General Cowin had been engaged by her to conduct her case, and as he was not able to be present, owing to the fact that he was similarly engaged in the district court, the hearing was postponed until Monday at 2 o'clock. It was a question what was to be done with the two girls in the meantime and it was finally decided to turn them over to Mr. Jones, the expressman, with whom Jane had lived for five years and who is bound to produce them in court at the time named. It is believed that had Mrs. Kelly No. 2 known of the action being begun the two girls would have disappeared as quickly and mysteriously as they did from their old home in Philadelphia.

BABY JAY.

In the district court at 4 o'clock Judge Wakeley heard the argument in the famous case of Kingsley vs. Whitman. This is the contest for the possession of the infant left at one of the doors in the city hall building, where it was found by Vanderford, of the fire department, turned over to Mrs. Fuller, the city missionary, and by her given to Mr. and Mrs. Whitman, a respectable couple living out on a farm to raise. Mrs. Kingsley, who appears as plaintiff in the case, claims to be the child's mother, and demands that her own flesh and blood be surrendered to her.

Hon. J. C. Cowin appeared on behalf of the county authorities and for the Whitmans, who adopted the baby, and Colonel Smythe appeared for the claimant.

A number of witnesses were examined, and it was proved that the plaintiff's character was not good and that she was not fit to have charge of the baby. So, at least, thought the court, and dismissed the writ, resounding the child to the custody of the Whitmans.

The mother electrified the court, counsel and spectators by making a strong and eloquent speech in her own behalf, in which she laid down the law to court and counsel and promised a bitter war yet over the matter. She then left the court room in hysterics.

ALL FORLORN.

A Burt County Farmer Crossed in Love.

A somewhat sensational case has grown out of the foolish infatuation of John D. Freal, a Burt county farmer for Jennie Brown, a well known habitude of Tenth street.

Freal fell in love with the woman, who has a boy 13 years of age, and made numerous presents to both, and proposed to marry the woman. He came down to Omaha on Thursday and both stopped at the St. Charles that night, it being the understanding that they were to go up to his farm yesterday. Friday morning, however, Jennie stepped out of the hotel with her baggage and disappeared from the sight of her lover.

When Mr. Freal found out that she was giving him the shake he brought a suit of replevin to recover the presents he had made the mother and son.

Jennie's trunk was found and captured from its hiding place on the hill at the foot of Dodge street and everything was got back except the suit of clothes given by her. The last seen of the proposed bride was as she walked up the Northwestern track.

A NEW DEAL.

The Ninth Street Short Line Opens for Business.

Temporary Demoralization of the Time Schedule.

That active work is really begun in the paving of Tenth street is evidenced by the new deal in the running of cars on the street railway and in the closing up of Tenth street, which has been fenced in at both ends.

For some days past a force has been engaged in laying a track on Ninth street parallel with the old track, putting in switches and planting the new turn table which arrived on Sunday at the terminus of the line near the U. P. depot. This was completed Thursday giving the street railway a double track nearly all the way from the depot to Masonic Hall, and yesterday cars began running both ways on 9th where they formerly ran south on that street and north on 10th. The latter street has been fenced up, the track near the depot torn up, and considerable paving already done to make way for the laying of the granite blocks. This will make Tenth street rather quiet for the coming few months, and give additional life to Ninth, which not only gets the street car travel both ways, but also all other travel of wagons, hacks, omnibuses, etc.

One institution which will be greatly benefited by the change is the Cozzen house, which is to be opened up shortly under the name of the Grand Pacific.

The change of programme to-day made the running of cars rather irregular and it may be a day or two before things get to running smoothly. An instance of the way things worked yesterday is told by a well known North Omaha man, who started from Shinin's addition to catch the noon train. When he left the house the car was clear out of sight ahead of him, but he soon overtook it and the driver advised him to walk if he was in a hurry. Desiring to sit in the shade while the pedestrian got on anyway and rode down to Farnam street, where, having got a rest, he jumped off and walked the rest of the way to the depot.

Of course this is unavoidable at the opening of the new line, but as the track is well laid and smooth, it will not belong until schedule time will be made right straight along.

POLICE RECORD.

A Man Who Claims to Have Been Robbed—Minor Matters.

About 2 o'clock yesterday a man who gave his name as Charles Jones was arrested in front of the Paxton for intoxication. He was lodged in the county jail over night and sent up this morning in default of the amount of his fine. At the morning session of the court a woman appeared and told a story to the effect that on the evening before she met Jones who told her that he was broke and asked for money to get a square meal together. The two went to a restaurant together and afterwards had some drinks together. At this time the woman claims that she let the fellows see her roll of money and that he subsequently robbed her of all of it, the amount being $75 or $80.

On the other hand Jones claimed that he had not a cent of money and that he had been knocked down and robbed near the Tenth street depot of $200 or $300. After being taken to county jail the prisoner was again searched and $10 found concealed in the lining of his hat. He probably has the rest stashed away somewhere. His story is doubted by the officers, and they think he will have another term after serving out his present sentence.

There were four cases of plain drunk yesterday, two of whom were sent up for 15 days each on bread and water, one in default of $10 and costs, and the fourth continued.

There was one case of disturbance of the peace and one of disorderly conduct, both of which were disposed of in the usual manner.

A complaint has been filed against Constable Paul Stein, by John P. Henderson, charging him with disturbance of the peace, by going to Henderson's residence on Harney street and kicking up a row.

There is also one case in which there is a charge of assault and battery.
